

NEOGS
90th Annual Spring Meeting

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this program, the participants should be able to:

- Use the concepts of developmental sequences to predict the utility and advisability of fetal surgery
- Review the epidemiology of surgery on the geriatric patient and understand important peri-operative considerations
- Identify at least three obstacles LGBTQ identifying patients might face when accessing healthcare
- Review updates in genetic testing for gynecologic patients
- Implement improvements in the identification and obstetric management of the obese woman during pregnancy and delivery
- Establish the power of empathy and the empathic physician.

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the accreditation requirements and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) through the joint providership of Women & Infants Hospital and the New England Obstetrical & Gynecological Society. Women & Infants Hospital is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians. Women & Infants Hospital designates this live activity for a maximum of 6.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Women & Infants Hospital strives to ensure that all educational programs are presented in an objective manner and offer material based on scientific knowledge. All faculty participating in continuing medical education programs are required to disclose to audiences any real or apparent conflicts of interest related to the content of their presentations. Further, speakers are required to disclose any intent to discuss the off-label uses of any drugs or devices, or products that are still investigational.

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists has assigned 6.5 cognate credits to this program.

The New England Obstetrical & Gynecological Society was founded 90 years ago to “raise the standards of obstetrical and gynecological practice in the communities served by its members.”

The Annual Spring meeting is designed to comply with the mandate of the founding members.
